Peste des rongeurs sauvages

Wild-rodent Plague

Amérique

America

Etats-Unis. — La peste des rongeurs sauvages a été signalée dans le DeBaca County. Le 12 décembre, le Département de la Santé publique de l'Etat du Nouveau-Mexique a appris qu'une mortalité inhabituelle avait été observée parmi les sylvilagus, les lièvres et les néotomes dans le DeBaca County. Pasteurella pestis a été isolé des tissus d'un sylvilagus et des puces d'un animal piégé. Les études de laboratoire se poursuivent. L'épizootie s'étendait à au moins 25 km à l'est et au sud de Fort Sumner. Les dispositions suivantes ont été prises: interdiction du piégeage et de la chasse dans le DeBaca County, diffusion de renseignements sur les mesures de protection individuelle, établissement d'un programme de pou-drage pour les localités de la zone.

Il est rappelé que l'Assemblée mondiale de la Santé a accepté la recommandation suivante du Comité de la Quarantaine internationale:

« Il n'y a normalement pas lieu de prendre des mesures à l'égard d'une circonscription notifiée comme infectée de peste des rongeurs sauvages, à moins que certains faits ne montrent que la peste des rongeurs sauvages s'est infiltrée ou tend à s'infiltrer chez les rongeurs domestiques, constituant ainsi une menace pour le trafic international; ces circonscriptions devraient toutefois être notifiées télégraphiquement à l'Organisation dans les vingt-quatre heures qui suivent le moment où elles ont été reconnues comme infectées. »¹

United States. — Wild-rodent plague has been reported in DeBaca County. On 12 December, the New Mexico State Department of Public Health was informed of unusual mortality of wild cottontail rabbits, jack rabbits and pack rats in DeBaca County. Pasteurella pestis was isolated from the tissue of a cottontail rabbit and from fleas of a trapped rabbit. Laboratory studies continue. The epizootic extended at least 15 miles east and south of Fort Sumner. Control measures include prohibition of trapping and hunting in DeBaca County, publicity for personal protection and plans for a dusting programme for communities in the area.

It is recalled that the World Health Assembly has accepted the following recommendation of the Committee on International Quarantine:

“Measures need not normally be taken against a local area which has been notified as infected with wild-rodent plague, unless there is evidence that the wild-rodent plague has infiltrated or is tending to infiltrate into the domestic rodent population, and thus threatens international traffic; such areas should, however, be notified to the Organization by telegram within twenty-four hours of the recognition of the disease.”¹
