The meeting was held virtually, while the Bureau participated in person.
2. The INB was established by the second special session of the World Health Assembly through decision SSA2(5) (2021) in order to draft and negotiate a WHO convention, agreement or other international instrument on pandemic prevention, preparedness and response, with a view to adoption under Article 19, or under other provisions of the WHO Constitution as may be deemed appropriate by the INB.
3. In his opening remarks, the Director-General congratulated the elected Bureau members and proposed for consideration by Member States five ways to bring about a world better prepared to prevent and respond to pandemic threats. These were building national, regional and global capacities based on a whole-of-government and whole-of-society approach; establishing global access and benefit sharing for all pathogens, and determining a global policy for the equitable production and distribution of countermeasures; establishing robust systems and tools for pandemic preparedness and response; establishing a long-term plan for sustainable financing to ensure support for global health threat management and response systems; and empowering WHO to fulfil its mandate as the directing and coordinating authority on international health work, including for pandemic preparedness and response.
4. Following the adoption of the agenda, the meeting considered and adopted the proposed method of work contained in document A/INB/1/3, with amendments.² In their interventions, Member States expressed their commitment and solidarity for a transparent, inclusive, efficient and Member State led

Member States also discussed various potential elements to be included in the instrument and requested the Bureau to outline a predictable and consultative process for the collection of substantive elements for the preparation of the working draft for the second meeting of the INB. - The proposed modalities for the engagement of relevant stakeholders, as contained in document A/INB/1/7, on the understanding that the modalities are intended to be a "living document" which may be updated by the INB, as it may decide.
