TOP 15 Human Resources for Health

TOP 15.1 Working for health action plan 2022-2030

German national statement (209 words)

- [Germany aligns itself with the statements delivered by___]
- We strongly support the efforts on human resources for health that have been made. We stand with the action plan on Working for Health for 2022 to 2030 and acknowledge the immense workload health care workers around the globe have been enduring in the recent years.
- Challenges in health care may only be overcome if we secure data-driven planning and investment in health and care workforce and a safe environment, but in the same time ensure high quality through education opportunities and life-long learning.
- The well-being and health of professionals serving in the health care sector is one of the top priorities on Germany’s political agenda. Therefore we have set up a national action plan on a participatory manner involving actors both governmental and non-governmental to improve working conditions for nurses in accordance with WHA’s action plan.
- The COVID19-pandemic has shown that strong health systems rely on strong health care workers, that strong communities do rely on strong health care workers, that the world relies on strong health care workers. We must ensure that we treat them with respect and give them the space and the opportunity to succeed in their work by setting the right courses now.
- Thank you!
